Comment First priority: we need a plan for fall now! There needs to be a requirement that teachers are prepared to teach online and use Google classroom in the fall in case of future shut downs. There will be no excuse this time for not being prepared. Doing nothing more than Emailing assignments is not acceptable for Fall. Refusing to use the districts

Comment:	The SCTA proposal for MTSS is infuriating. SCTA, a labor organization that represents adults, continues to think they are in charge of our school district and should be able to dictate what services are offered to children with special needs.

We already know from previous actions like Appendix D that SCTA serves adults, not children. That is literally their job- protect labor conditions and salary. They are not an organization designed to serve children with special needs. Union boss John Borsos is not Christine Baeta. We will never get reform with teachers unions acting like they are the school board and police unions acting like they are the city council!

For the SCUSD negotiations team, don't you dare sell out our kids like this. We are sick of board members that roll over and let the labor union decide what service our kids will get. That has blocked reforms for our district for decades. This is exactly why no one running for school board should ever take teacher union money.

Teacher's Unions used to be about ensuring fair labor practices for educators, now they are about influencing politics and making money. We need organizations that are here for kids, not adults. A union that's focused on its own best interest isn't one that's focused on children and learning. I request that SCUSD ban campaign contributions from Teachers Unions for board elections to ensure fair and unbiased elections.
